

♪ Marsby's Song ♪

music by David Harper, lyrics by Marcia Trimble

(Mission Control sings)

Do you have a secret? Have you always been dry?
Were you once wet? Were you ever hotter?
Can you remember back billions of years?
Did you have tears? Did you have water?
We're sending two robots for the summer...
to visit you...look for a clue...
grind into your rocks...
poke inside your crater...gather some data...
Marsby, did you ever have water?
Did you ever have water?

(Marsby sings)

I'm Marsby, the blushing planet.
Did I ever have water?
I can't remember but I know I oughta...
know if I once was hotter...
or have signs of life here...if I could tell you anything to make Opportunity and Spirit sing.

♪ Tones... ♪

(Mission Control sings)

Are there signs of life as we know it...
telltale signs of life for the robots...
twins, Opportunity and Spirit?
They've come to meet you Marsby...can you hear it?
New sounds, good sounds...help us find the secrets that you have for all mankind
because life on Mars is such an unknown.
We want to know if we're really alone.